LAS VEGAS DATING SCENE Finding that one person to date, not just a “hook up,” is like hitting the jackpot. Chances are one in a quintillion. Or, as gamblers put it, a chance. Where are the Holy Grail of Las Vegas men? Harper’s girlfriends have tried speed dating, meet-up groups, and online dating with some success. Harper, chef and Miss Nevada runner up, decides to give online dating a try, as she doesn’t want to be kissless on another New Year’s Eve. Or Valentine’s Day. Or Fourth of July. Guys also believe the local dating scene in Las Vegas is a bottomless pit of despair. Bradley, a banging hot man and youngest CFO in a casino on The Strip isn’t meeting the quality of woman he’s looking for. Online dating, where’s the app? TWO WORDS: ONLINE DATING Harper asks her martini-drinking buddies’ for help in writing her ad. This novel takes Harper through the minefields of meeting guys online, looking for a man who will move mountains to be with her. Is that too much to ask? Apparently yes, because all she meets are losers. Enter her friend Billy, who talks her into a European vacation to cheer her up, and, oh la la, Harper and Bradley meet. But since both are traveling with opposite-sex companions, each assumes the other is in a relationship with their traveling companion. Dead end city. Or so Harper thought. But after returning to Las Vegas, she finds Bradley online. Could he be the one? Or does Harper have another candidate right under her nose, just waiting for her the chance to be Mr. Right?
