The several dozen poems in this collection echo numerous Biblical Psalms, providing spiritual expressions for contemporary meditation and life. The inspirations for these poems are broadly selected from Abraham's family, Kings David and Solomon, the Prophets, Jesus, and Epistle writers. For most of the universal emotions which make the 2500 year old praises so poignant, from cries of despondency to elation, there are expressions in this book to convey many yearnings to the ears of God. Topics, concepts, and language are current. Writing styles range through a rich variety of Hebrew poetry, rhymes, modern blank and free verse. These contemporary Psalms are crafted for personal and corporate prayer, worship, song, ceremony, contemplation, celebration and lamentation. These "Psalms for Our Days" incorporate many shaded moods of modern life for sharing among acquaintances and with the Creator.
