Roads Without Ends Vernell Everett

The Makings of a New People. . . These three stories are about the experiences of the people of color making the best that they could out of what they had to work with. They searched through the limited opportunities they were given for the makings of some worthwhile qualities of life. These people were the beginning of a new breed of human beings, created from the debasing and immoral sexual behaviors of several races and ethnic groups, resulting in the creation of a new breed of man. These short stories are attempts to portray these people as the only true Americans. They have no other single country of origin.
