When every student reaches high school age and the quest for higher learning is imminent, there is an old saying that will become a staple in the decision making process about college life. "College will be the best four years of your life," they say. "You will meet lifelong friends and forge bonds with people that will last forever." That may not be true for everyone. Super Senior takes you on journey from graduation night through the collegiate career of Andre Marshall (Hidden Agendas.) College life is a different animal considering the peer pressure, sex, parties and constant road trips. Many students lose focus on why they are actually there. Through it all, Andre forges through the wilds of two colleges, death, indecisiveness between women, the hardship of putting himself through school and trying to maintain sanity as he attempts to live a normal college life. Nestled on the outskirts of Florence, South Carolina stands Franklin Memorial University (commonly referred to as FMU.) From the outside looking in, FMU stands as one of the state's premier facilities of higher education. Once you're enrolled and are within the bounds of the yard...anything goes. On your own for the first time, you get a first-hand experience of the things that no college pamphlet or campus visit will ever reveal.
